

Types of Presupposition

- Presuppositions are associated with the use of a large number of words, phrases and structures.
- These linguistic forms are considered as indicators of potential presupposition, which can only become actual presupposition in contexts with speakers.

Types of Presupposition

- 1. Existential Presupposition
- 2. Factive Presupposition
- 3. Non Factive Presupposition
- 4. Lexical Presupposition
- 5. Structural Presupposition
- 6. Counterfactual Presupposition

Existential Presupposition

- Entities named by the speaker are assumed to be present.
- It is the assumption of the existence of the entities named by the speaker.
 1. Noun phrase.
 2. Possessive constructions.

Examples (Noun Phrase)

- “The Cold War has ended”

Presupposes that the existence of the entities it refers to, in this case the “Cold War”.

- “The Car was broken”

Presupposes that the existence of the entities it refers to, in this case the “Car”.

Examples (Possessive constructions)

► "Tom's car is new"

We can presuppose that Tom exists and that he has a car.

► "Your Book is new"

We can presuppose that You exist and that you have a book.

Factive Presupposition

- It is the assumption that something is true due to the presence of some verbs such as "know", "realize" and "glad" etc.

Examples

- She didn't realize he was ill.
(>> He was ill)
- We regret telling him.
(>> We told him)
- I wasn't aware that she was married.
(>> She was married)
- It isn't odd that he left early.
(>> He left early)
- I'm glad that it's over.
(>> It's over)

Non Factive Presupposition

- It is an assumption referred to something that is not true.
- For example, verbs like "dream", "imagine" and "pretend" are used with the presupposition that what follows is not true.

Examples

- I dreamed that I was rich.
(>> I was not rich)
- We imagined that we were in London.
(>> We were not in London)
- He pretends to be ill
(>> He is not ill)

Lexical Presupposition

- It is the assumption that, in using one word, the speaker can act as if another meaning (word) will be understood.

Examples

- Mary stopped running.
(>>She used to run.)
- You are late again.
(>> You were late before.)
- Are you still such a bad driver?
(>> You were a bad driver)
- "stop" , "again" "still" are taken to presuppose another
(Unstated) concept.

Structural Presupposition

- It is the assumption associated with the use of certain structures.
- ❖ Wh-question constructions.
- The listener perceives that the information presented is necessarily true, or intended as true by the speaker..

Examples

- When did she travel to the USA?
(>> she travelled)
- Where did you buy the book?
(>> you bought the book)
- When did he leave?
(>> he left)
- Where did you buy the bike?
(>> You bought the bike)

Counterfactual Presupposition

- It is the assumption that what is presupposed is not only untrue, but is the opposite of what is true, or contrary to facts.
- For instance, some conditional structures, generally called counterfactual conditionals, presuppose that the information, in the if- clauses, is not true at the time of utterance.

Examples

- If you were my daughter, I would not allow you to do this.
(>> You are not my daughter)
- If I were rich I would buy a Ferrari.
(>> I'm not rich)
- If he hadn't made such a terrible mistake, we would be very happy now.
(>> He made a terrible mistake)
- They wish they could go on vacation now.
(>> They cannot go on vacation now)
- I wish I had studied medicine.
(<< I did not study medicine.)
